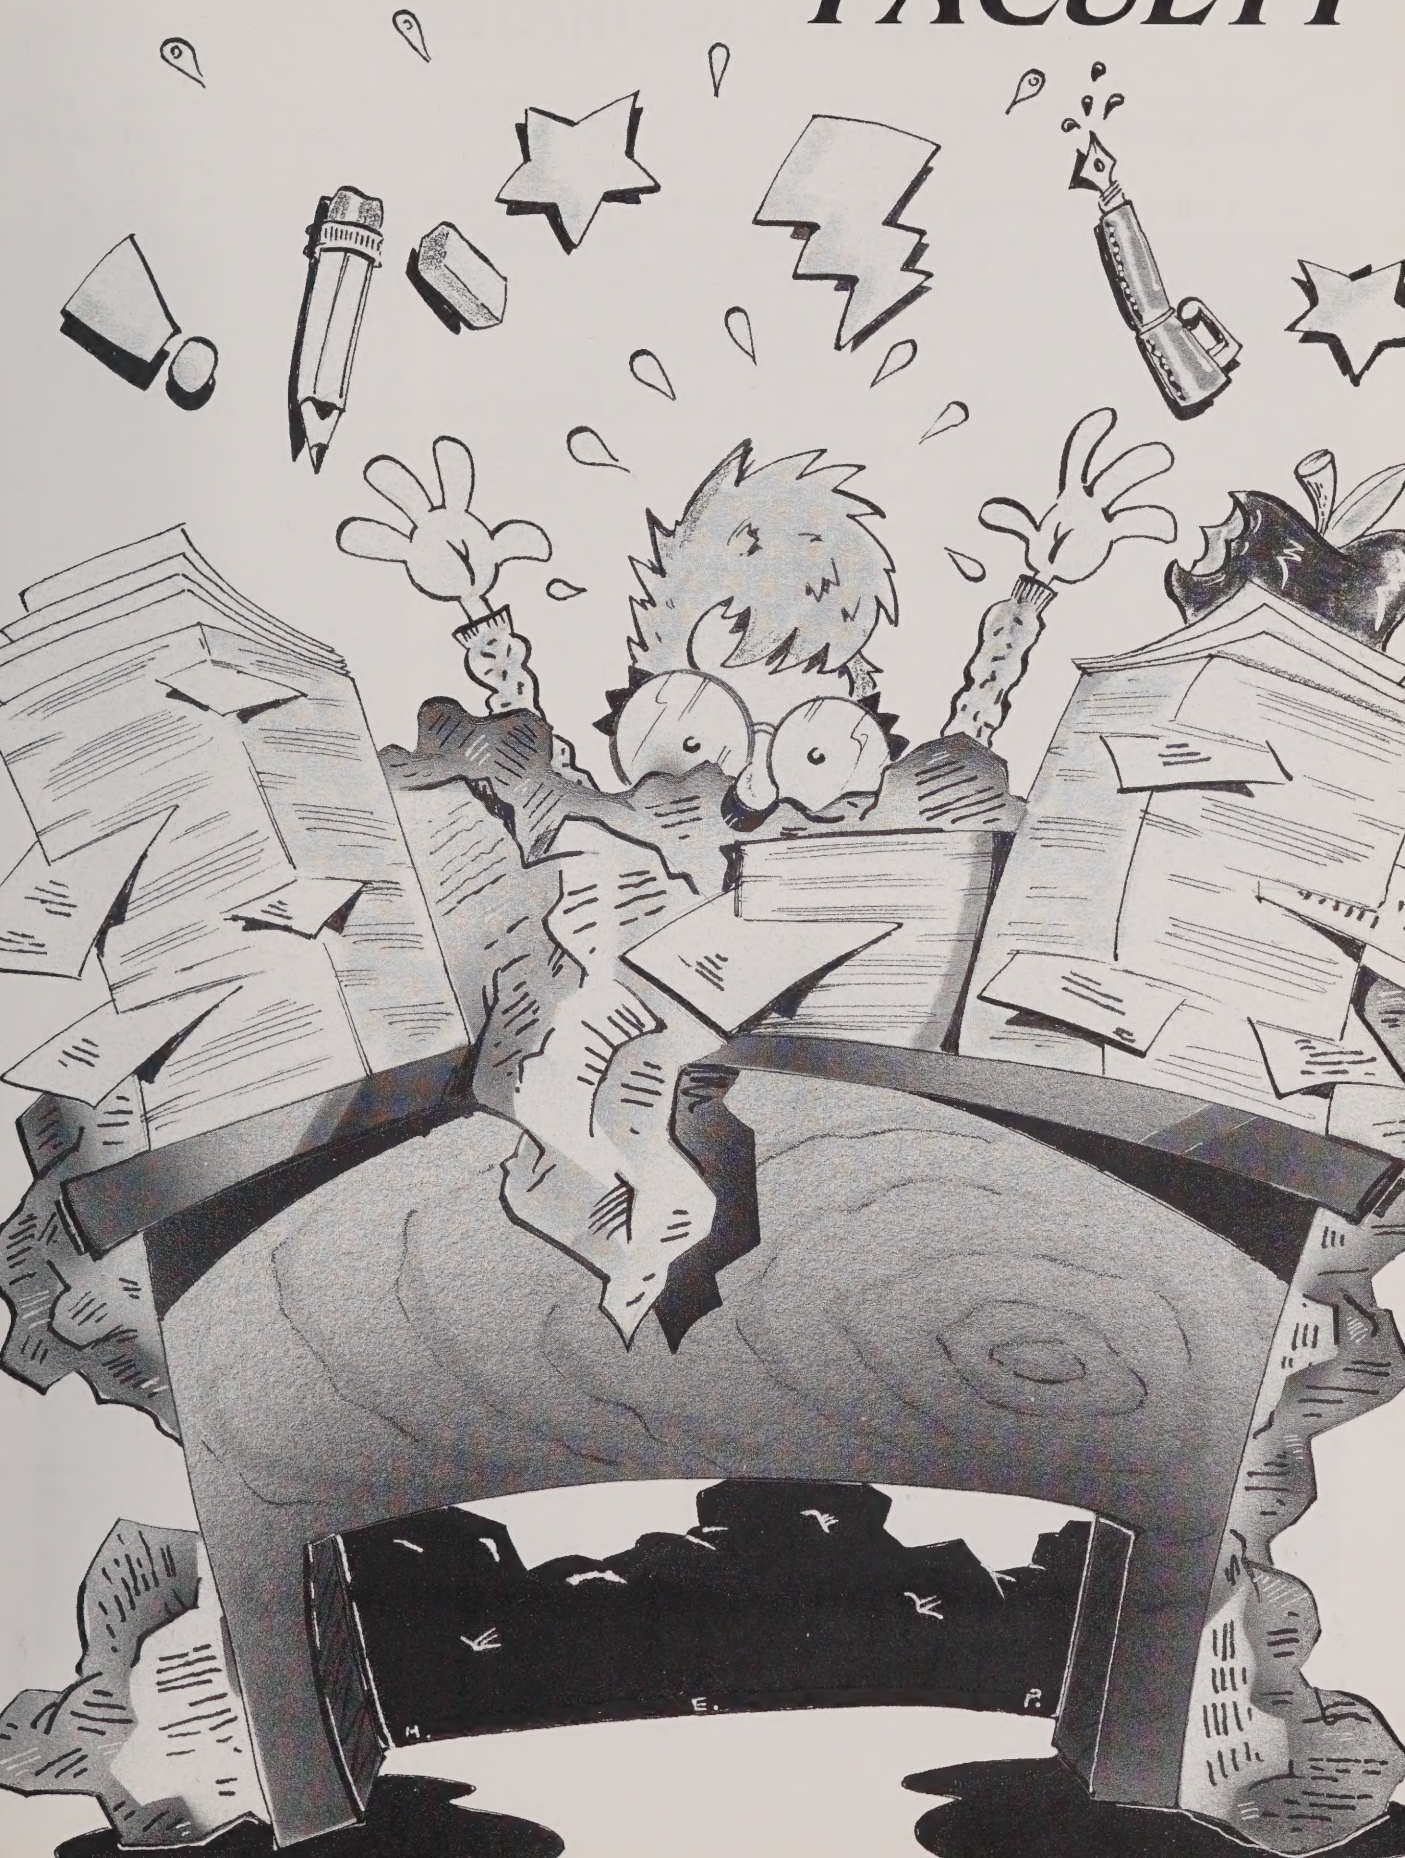
Dedication

Since your arrival in 1989, when we were only in the seventh grade, you have been an inspiration to us all. Though we sometimes felt a strong desire to torture you (like on the geography final), the past six years wouldn't have been the same without you. You have taught us to express ourselves and to be unique. Your friendship and guidance has meant the world to us. From a "Cool Yule" to "Little Red Riding Hood", to superb speeches, you have taught us how to act, on and off the stage. The trips to places like New York and Vermont, even Europe have served to reinforce our bond with you while at the same time broadening our horizons.

The stories and moments we have shared with you implore us to give you our everlasting gratitude and friendship, no matter how far away any of us go. We'll definitely miss you with all our hearts, and we know you'll miss us! Thank you, Mr. McDonald for everything.

Thank You Mr. McDonald

FACULTY



To The Class of "95"

I know with certainty that your class does not need any kind of "assertiveness training". There have been many occasions that you have not hesitated to let me know what was important to you individually or your class collectively. Since "it takes a whole village to raise a child" we are pleased that you "let your voice be heard."

There is, of course, some other values than just "letting your voice be heard". Responsibility is about the issue of a balance between obedience and freedom. Responsibility is perhaps the most difficult of human values. As you face the future please search the depths of your being for the necessary resources to succeed. We live in an age where the word "responsibility" is not being used and the concept has become an anachronism.

Best wishes on the next phase of your journey. Don't forget to visit and keep us posted. You will always be a member of our village.

Sincerely

Robert L. Johnston

Although the sixth grade are a small group, they have certainly been noticed at Woodward. They are all very intelligent young ladies hoping to prosper and build up their character. As the big sisters of these outstanding young women, we seniors will certainly miss their delightful faces and exciting personalities.

Finally, we all got here

Now that we're awake, we might as well make the most of it

Thanks for the food, Dave!

Hey, at least they're not dressing us up!

On the morning of October 14, the seniors awoke their little sisters from bed in the wee hours of the morn. Due to the late arrival of Kelli, Becky, and Molly, we waited until mentor period to eat our breakfast of munchkins and orange juice. For lunch, we hiked down to Wendy's, taking many pictures along the way. Even though "some" of us were a little late, everyone had a blast.

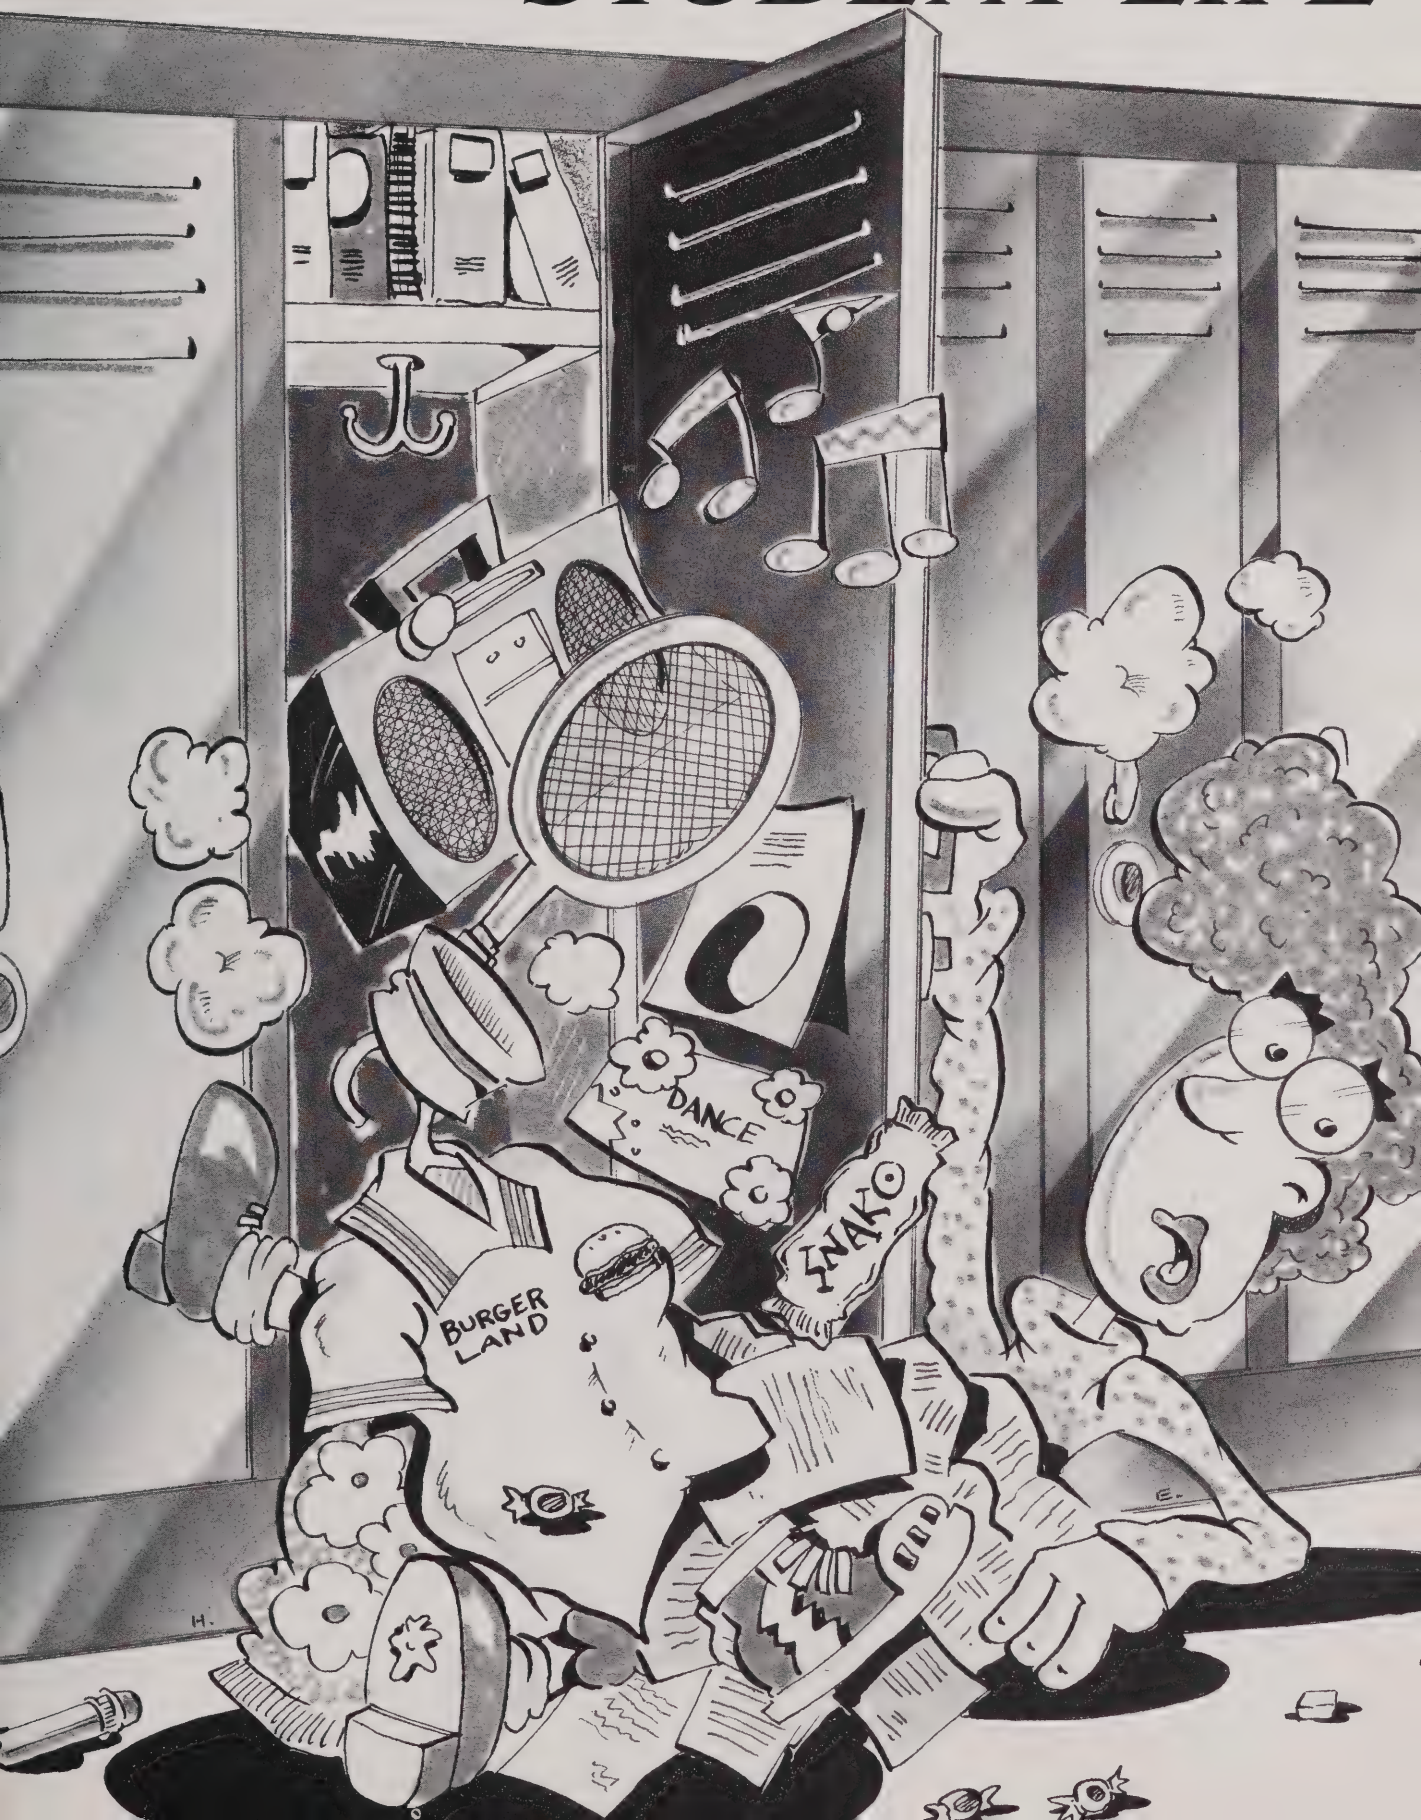
STUDENT LIFE



Predictions

Becky will be leading the Peace Corps in Southeast Asia, married to Greg Allman, with whom she will live in everlasting peace, love, and happiness.

Diane will still be asking "What's a Cazu?" and nobody will ever know the answer!! She will become President of the National Fly Swatters' Club, thanks to all of her practice.

Irene will become first runner up in the Miss Universe pageant but then gain the title after sending her bodyguard and husband Anthony to beat up the real Miss Universe in a Nancy Kerrigan-esque attack.

Julie will finally have a long-term boyfriend named Frank but still refuse to get married, and be managing all of Irene's appearances as Miss Universe.

Kelli will still love Richie, have her clocks set ten minutes fast and still manage to be late for everything.

Molly will be managing Boyz II Men's children with Lenny, and will also be the editor of Sassy Magazine.

Class Will

I, Becky Haynes, leave all of my flower bands, barrettes, and bows to each girl in the school.
I, Diane Niemann, leave my fly swatter to the next senior who has to kill them.
I, Irene Lowney, leave my dream book to all of the dreamers (and Mr. Stevens.)
I, Julie Silverman, leave one my imaginary boyfriends to anyone who needs him.
I, Kelli Burke, leave Richie's car to anyone who needs a ride.
I, Molly McCormack, leave my questionable leadership skills to anyone who can use them.

Remember When ...
Becky flipped over the fence.
Diane was in the bathroom.
Irene was in the bathroom ...with Diane.
Julie got a check plus on her Don Quixote essay.
Kelli wasn't late.
Molly got a "C"

What If ...
Becky got mad.
Diane knew what a cazu meant.
Irene didn't dream.
Julie had a longterm boyfriend.
Kelli didn't love Richie.
Molly didn't have money.
